There will also be a call for Advocate of the Year. The nominator will complete several questions about the nominee (including but not limited to letters of recommendation, rationale for nomination), and the nominee will also produce artifacts (including but not limited to resume, statement of work). All of these artifacts will be reviewed by a committee comprised of Past CSCA Presidents and Previous SCOY winners. Once judging is complete, a winner from each level is named based on scores from the reviewers. From those three winners, additional information is gathered from the winners to accomplish two things: one is to determine the Colorado School Counselor of the Year (highest marks from the panel of reviewers/judges), who then will be passed on to compete for the ASCA School Counselor of the Year as a state winner (the winner is submitted to ASCA who then carries out the judging/interviewing for ASCA SCOY).

VIII.E.2. Vetting of nominees. Those nominated for any level of School Counselor of the Year will have their information vetted for accuracy. If a discrepancy is found, then the Professional Recognition Chair (typically immediate Past-President) will check with supervisors, districts, individuals, or anyone else to gather information, to rectify the situation. If it is found that the inaccuracy was found to have merit, then the nominee will be disqualified – from level School Counselor of the Year and/or Colorado School Counselor of the Year.

VIII.E.3. Notification. Winners at each level will be notified that they are a winner – in most cases a governing board member will represent CSCA in the notification process. If a nominee, or School Counselor of the Year has misled the professional recognition committee, the Professional Recognition Chair (typically immediate Past-President) will notify the nominee of the situation, inform the Executive Committee, and then apprise the Governing Board with a statement so if any board members are questioned, they have a factual response/statement with common language.
